

Did Trudy benefit or will she benefit financially from her efforts to privatize public housing?

Trudy has never benefited financially from her position with HACA, nor has Homes for America, the non-profit housing organization she co-founded and serves as Chairman. She has stated this publicly on many occasions, including before the City's Planning Committee and the Board of Appeals. Furthermore, Trudy has consistently indicated that Homes for America will in no way be part of any present or future HACA homeownership or redevelopment efforts. In fact, developers that participate in such redevelopment efforts use state and Federal resources that require extensive documentation on ownership and on entities and persons participating in the redevelopment.
